2018 Multicultural Women's Leadership Course

Applications are open until 20 January 2018

What is it?

The Women's Leadership Course is a 10 month-course delivered by TAFE SA for women already in – or who are well placed to be in leadership or supervisory roles in workplaces, community organisations or multicultural community groups.

Participants graduate with a Certificate IV in Leadership and Management, a nationally-recognised qualification. The course harnesses the unique knowledge, skills, experiences and qualities that women from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds bring to leadership roles, and tailors assessments accordingly.

The Women's Leadership Course helps women tackle the challenges they sometimes face as leaders, builds their confidence and empowers them to take on leadership positions.

Who should apply?

Successful applicants must be women aspiring to become strong, confident leaders, and/or members of governance boards or committees. Successful students will benefit from further training to help them take on leadership roles and/or higher duties.

Applicants:

- must be in leadership roles at work or in their community, or aspire to be in a leadership role
- are encouraged to be involved with a community organisation or club
- must be employed either full or part time (to meet course requirements)
- must be bicultural or bilingual, and proficient in verbal and written English

When is it?

The course is delivered over 10-months from late February to December 2018. Participants attend 4-hour classes every Friday morning at the Adelaide City Campus of TAFE SA (120 Currie Street, Adelaide).

How much is it?

The course is free for the 16 participants who are selected from a competitive application process.
